

Results are in: BOGS are pretty impressive. The boots are toasty, stylish and supportive. I wore them all over NYC on a Saturday of play. We hit a museum, had dim sum, went to the market and more. Not a blister in sight and speaking of sight, these boots had me looking stylish all day.

 CITY TECHNOLOGY

- 1 NEO-TECH INSULATION
Provides added cushioning and warmth from temperate to sub-zero temperatures
More about Neo-Tech
- 2 DURABLE RUBBER
High performance, tough rubber to protect from the elements, sealing out water
- 3 CONTOUR FIT
For Maximum support and movement with a wider forefront and narrower heel
- 4 SLIP RESISTANT OUTSOLE
Added Traction with a sturdy rubber outsole
- 5 WATERPROOF UPPER
Neo-Tech upper that protects from the cold and is 100% waterproof

BOGS says on their website, "Comfort isn't an option, but a requirement." These shoes have now been with me for a month and I'm quite thrilled. The Mckenna ($170) comes in brown or black—I favor the brown for the equestrian appeal. The shoes are constructed with leather layered over a Neo-Tech upper to protect from the elements. They call the soles non-slip—the deep treads are perfect for slushy weather or rain. And take note moms with cold feet, they are comfort-rated from temperate to sub-zero conditions.